Reception to the Diplomatic Corps at the White House Largest Ever Given at Executive Mansion.

The reception in honor of the diplomatic corps last night was one of the largest ever given at the White House, 2,000 invitations having been issued to members of the official and resident circles. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt, with the others of the receiving party, escorted by Colonel Bingham, Commander Cowles, Major McCawley, Captain Proctor, Lieutenant Poole and Lieutenant McCoy, started from the upper corridor promptly at 9 o'clock and took their station in the Blue Room. Mrs. Roosevelt looked unusually well in a gown of white satin richly trimmed with lace. Her ornaments were diamonds and pearls and she held a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Mrs. Roosevelt's frock was of white net thickly spangled with silver and she wore the bracelet, the gift of Prince Henry, Mrs. Shaw, in the absence of Mrs. Hay, who is at present with her daughter, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, in New York, stood on Mrs. Roosevelt's right and wore white satin; Mrs. Knox, a Paris toilet of silver spangled lace, made over white satin with necklace and ornaments of diamonds; Mrs. Payne also wore white, Miss Wilson's toilet was of light blue satin heavily appliqued with lace and trimmed with black velvet.

Colonel Bingham made the introductions to the President. Major McCawley, following a new and excellent plan, introduced the guests to Mrs. Roosevelt.

In the absence of Dr. von Holleben, the German ambassador, dean of the corps, the long line of foreign representatives was headed by Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, who ranks next to Dr. von Holleben, having been accredited here less than a year after the German ambassador presented his credentials. Count Cassini was accompanied by Countess Marguerite Cassini, Miss des Planches, and his entire staff, who presented a dazzling appearance in their court and military uniforms. Countess Marguerite Cassini wore a handsome lace gown with many jewels.

Senora Azpiroz, who is the ranking woman of the diplomatic corps, wore a toilet of lavender satin, pailletted with silver.

Lady Herbert, wife of the British ambassador, looked regal in a rich toilet of white satin embroidered in silver, and a tulle and a necklace of diamonds. The Ambassador and Lady Herbert were accompanied by their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Baylis, Mrs. Baylis wore a toilet of vivid blue net over satin of the same color, with a tulle of diamonds and many diamond ornaments. Mr. Baylis has been recently appointed secretary to the American embassy in London.

Madame Hengelmüller's toilet was of pale pink satin richly embroidered with silver with a necklace of sapphires and diamonds. Her niece, the Baroness von Palm, wore a pretty frock of pink silk. Madame Takahira, who always dresses in excellent taste, wore last night a rich costume of black lace over tulle and chiffon with handsome jewels.

The wife of the Belgian minister, who has not yet laid aside her mourning for Queen Henrietta of Belgium, looked particularly handsome in a black velvet gown with a dog collar of pearls. Her sister, Miss Clayton, wore a lace gown made over chiffon.

A striking toilet was that of Mrs. Draper, wife of General Draper, the former ambassador to Italy, of rare old point lace trimmed with ermine. Her ornaments were diamonds.

Mrs. Waterlow, wife of the attaché of the British embassy, wore a toilet of white satin trimmed with lace, with a tulle of diamonds and a diamond necklace.

Mrs. Dewey wore a white satin gown with diamond ornaments.

Among other handsome costumes were those of Miss Kean, pink panne velvet with diamond ornaments; Mrs. Corbin, blue brocade with pearl ornaments; Mrs. Cowles, white satin richly trimmed with lace; Mrs. Depew, pale blue satin with diamond and pearl ornaments; Mrs. Pezet, black spangled net over black satin; Miss Perez Rivera, blue panne velvet; Mrs. Kearns, wife of Senator Kearns, white satin veiled in lace; Mrs. Alger, white satin trimmed with point lace and diamond ornaments, the Misses Hitchcock, white toilets of liberty silk; Mrs. Foraker, pink brocade; Miss Van Dyke Jones, white chiffon; Countess Esterhazy, black panne velvet and point lace; Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, red velvet with a dog collar of diamonds; Mrs. Swanson, wife of Representative Swanson of Virginia, white satin and lace; Miss Hagner, black and white striped silk; Mrs. Sowers black panne velvet.
